ALVIN BURLEIGH, Treasurer.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER OF THE ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY COMMITTEE.

The town, at its annual meeting March 11, 1913, appropriated the sum of three hundred dollars, and the committee, realizing at its earliest meetings that this sum would not be adequate for a celebration that would be a credit to the town, proceeded to appoint special committees to raise, by subscription, sale of anniversary medals, special advertising, etc., an outside sum. This, added to the town appropriation, was more than enough to meet the bills of the celebration and make the final payment on the illuminated dials of the town clock, and to assist Asquamchumaukee Chapter towards payment of the setting of its boulder, leaving a substantial balance in the Pemigewasset National Bank.

The financial statement is appended:

REPORT OF SCHOOL BOARD.

To the Citizens of Plymouth:

In accordance with custom, we herewith submit our annual report of the Plymouth Public Schools for the fiscal year ending March, 1914.

We are pleased to report that our High school is able to meet most satisfactorily the requirements of college and technical schools. It is on the list accredited by the State Department of Education; possesses the certificate privilege granted by the New England College Entrance Certificate Board, representing sixteen colleges and universities; and can enter its pupils to the following institutions not included in that number: Simmon's College, Clark College, Worcester Polytechnic School, Syracuse University, New Hampshire State College, and Maine State University.

The establishing of High schools in many of the surrounding towns has, of necessity, meant a slight decrease in the number of tuition pupils registered during the past few years. The entire enrollment, however, has remained practically the same, since the number received from our own town has considerably increased. Of the pupils graduated last June from our Grammar and District Schools, but two failed to enter the High—a record which surpasses that of any other year.

For some time the advisability of adding an Agricultural Course to our school curricula has been under consideration. To quote from the Standard Program of Studies for Secondary Schools: "It is coming to be a generally recognized principle in education that those great activities through which the race has been enlightened can well be depended upon as a means of educating the individual, whenever they can be organized for that purpose." In accordance with this principle, many of the schools of the state are introducing such courses as Manual Training, Domestic Science, and Agriculture. In this region, surrounded by farming towns from which we draw so largely for the support of our High School, the last seems perhaps most fitting for Plymouth. Such a curriculum, as laid down by the State Superintendent, contemplates the following purposes: "to utilize the science of agriculture as a means of general culture, parallel with physics, chemistry, and the languages; to meet the boy whose previous interests have been those of the farm on the ground of those interests; to offer to him a sound educational basis for an efficient and worthy life as a husbandman; to serve as an excellent preparation for advanced schools of agriculture; to add to the wealth of the state and nation in a highly trained generation of farmers." The addition of such a course would necessarily mean much greater expense to the town, unless certain studies could be dropped from our curricula, such as Greek or German, or both, since these are the two elected by the smallest number of pupils. Should such an elimination be made, it would be possible, at a comparatively small added expense, to maintain an Agricultural Course with the same number of teachers for at least two years. The decision of this matter rests with the citizens of the town.

During the past year twenty-five books, mainly of commercial and historical nature, have been added to the school library, which now numbers about six hundred volumes. These have been systematically arranged and a card catalog prepared.

On Dec. 19, an operetta, "The Captain of Plymouth," was presented by the pupils under the supervision of Miss Mabel V. Shaw, Teacher of Elocution. It was an entertainment most creditable to Miss Shaw and to the school, and from it the sum of $30.48 was realized for the purpose of decorations in the building. The remainder of the proceeds was reserved to defray in part the expenses of the Senior Class in June.

We recommend that $11,000.00 be raised under article number eight.

In conclusion we desire to say to the citizens of the District, that the schools are your schools, maintained by you, and for the benefit of every citizen. We believe the present teachers are efficient and doing a good work. If anything could make for greater efficiency, it is co-operation between parents and teachers. The aim of the instructors is not to drive the pupils through a certain prescribed course, but to develop character, to make good men and women, and to equip them to meet and solve the problems of life.

Each parent, better than any teacher, understands the fundamental characteristics of his child. The parent's duty should not cease when the child is started for school. Let there be frequent consultation between parents and teachers, to the end that each pupil may cease to be "one of the scholars" and become an individual. This applies to every father and every mother, regardless of what your own educational advantages may have been. You understand your own children. You are in a position to help.

A hearty co-operation in all things between parents and teachers would lift still higher our present high standard of efficiency.

May we count on that co-operation?

Since the foregoing was written, the High School building has been destroyed by fire, but through the courtesy and generosity of the Normal School authorities, the use of sufficient room in the Normal building has been offered, so that it will be possible to complete the work of the year.

Respectfully submitted,

SCHOOL BOARD.
